TONIGHT'S MEETING AROUSSES INTEREST

Many Express Willingness to Join Volunteer Corps—Meet at News-Times.

Seldom has as much local interest been aroused in any movement as that of the formation of a volunteer company for Mishawaka, the first of its kind in the history of the city. Since the matter was first taken up by The News-Times less than a week ago, the enterprise has been discussed by young men in every part of the city, and enthusiasm engendered over the project augurs well for its success. A meeting to organize the corps will be held in The News-Times office at 8 o'clock this evening. Seating capacity for fully 100 has been arranged, and should this prove insufficient, an overflow meeting will be held. The meeting will be addressed by several G. A. R. veterans, while Hubert Nifong, an ex-soldier, and resident of this city, will explain the proposition to the audience. Mr. Nifong received and honorable discharge from the army just a year ago while stationed at Galveston, Texas, with his regiment. He has agreed to drill the local regiment, giving his time and labor without remuneration. Should there be an enrollment of 40 at tonight's meeting, efforts will at once be made to obtain accommodations from the militia department at Washington.

As showing the interest aroused in the city, Robert McGowan, 216 S. Wenger st., called at The News-Times office Monday night and stated that he had arranged for a bicycle and motorcycle corps, 40 strong, to turn out for tonight's meeting. Most, if not all of them, he stated, would join the new company. Frank Brecon will have charge of the drum and bugle corps, which will do its part in front of The News-Times office before the meeting.

That Mishawaka will do its "bit" if ever called upon, may be confidently expected after the result of tonight's meeting.

"THE CITY OF ILLUSION."

Another feature picture, "The City of Illusion," will be seen at the Lincoln theater Wednesday and Thursday next, with Paula Shay in the title role. This is a stirring society drama in five acts, written and directed by Ivan Abramson. It deals with the story of a wealthy bachelor who marries the daughter of his caretaker, who has illusions regarding New York. On the refusal of her husband to take her there, she schemes to convert her plans by proposing an elopement with a friend of her husband's. How well she succeeded, and the bitterness she caused, is told in each succeeding part of the film.

"THE INNOCENCE OF RUTH."

The "Innocence of Ruth," an Edison five reel photoplay, will be offered at the Lincoln theater today, with Edward Earle and Viola Dana in the title role. The story unfolded in this photoplay is forceful and interesting in an unusual degree and exceedingly well presented in the film. It is essentially a tale of New York. Wall street, millionaires, charity balls, a helpless, beautiful girl, an equally fascinating bad woman and the usual high life side-lights.

CHILD RESCUED FROM DROWNING

Little One Ventures Out on Pier and Falls Into the St. Joseph River.

The four year old child of Mr. and Mrs. David Moser was rescued from drowning in the St. Joseph river on Sunday afternoon by a man whose name could not be learned. The child's father is in charge of the Woods-Benoit camp along the river in the western part of the city. The child walked out on a pier, ventured too far and fell into the water. The little one's cries for help were heard by a number of people who were picnicking along the river, and one of the men rushed to the scene and jumped into the water and succeeded in rescuing the child after it had gone down for the first time.

After hard work the child was revived and on Monday had fully recovered from the shock.

WILL MEET HUGHES

Roosevelt to Have Dinner With Candidate Wednesday.

International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 27.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt has accepted the invitation of Charles Evans Hughes, the republican presidential nominee, for a conference.

Mr. Hughes and Col. Roosevelt will have dinner together tomorrow night at the hotel Astor. It was announced today at the Hughes headquarters that the invitation had been extended to the colonel by Mr. Hughes and that it had been accepted.

The meeting will mark the final stages of the reconciliation between the chief leader of the extinct progressive party and the republicans.

Following a conference today between George W. Wickersham, former attorney general of the United States, and Mr. Hughes, it was reliably reported that William Wilcox, former member of the public service commission, will act as Mr. Hughes' campaign manager. It is understood, however, that Frank H. Hitchcock, who "put over" the Hughes nomination at Chicago, will act in an advisory capacity.

TALE OF FIGHT WITH MEXICANS TOLD BY MOREY

a noncommissioned officer. There was water in the ditch, and even while dying, Adair would pitch face forward into it without support.

How They Died.

"I understand the noncommissioned officer left Adair wounded in the ditch at Adair's order and went forward to Carrizal. Then, looking back, he saw his officer with his eyes blazing, his head wobbling against the side ditch, and he ran back and remained with him till death came.

"Boyd was killed when his troop made the rush for the trench in which Carranzistas had the machine guns. Just how he died I don't know."

"Caught in a right angle of fire, Morey's small detachment, as previous dispatches have related, was forced to retire. Mounts had been sent to the rear and every man, including the leader, was afoot. Alternately lying flat on their bellies and then rising and fighting desperately, the little band maneuvered to the rear. It continued to withdraw until Morey, with one of the corporals who was bleeding profusely from the shoulder and who wore Boyd's hat, found themselves with seven men behind an adobe wall near a dry hole which offered protection from the bullets, but not from the sun.

Three hundred yards to the south were the Carranzistas, some mounted, some afoot, advancing, firing and yelling. They had become emboldened by the Americans' retirement.

Men Attempt Escape.

"When I got behind that wall," resumed Morey in a matter of fact tone, "I told the men I proposed to escape. Those who wished to go, I told to go."

Four men, including one wounded man, elected to make the desperate attempt to escape, and Morey told how he saw them ascend the hill which stretched away to the north.

"I never saw men act so strangely," he said. "They didn't run or seem to exert themselves; they simply moved away as if dashed up the hill, and by so doing they probably saved us. We who remained behind the wall saw the Carranzistas apparently thought they had us behind the wall safely, and bent all their efforts on getting the four who were trying to escape. We were unharmed."

With the enemy beating the country on all sides, Morey and three black troopers lay in the hole behind the wall all that long, waterless day, with the sun beating squarely down on them. Night came, and with it came a welcome drop in temperature and the stars. The wounded officer and men started trailing west in the first leg of the 70-mile journey to Pershing's line.

Morey was so weak that he could only walk a hundred yards or so at a stretch, and as the night wore on and he became weaker and weaker he concluded that it was humanly impossible for him to go further.

So he first requested—and when they refused—he ordered the three Negro troopers to leave him.

"I reasoned," he said today, "that they could go on and I couldn't, so I made them go."

Goos to Ranch.

The three went on, Morey with his wounds lacerated as best they could be, lay down in the desert and slept. The stars were still out, but dawn was breaking when he awoke, strengthened by the rest. He forced himself to his feet and staggered on in the direction in which he thought lay Santo Domingo ranch, eight miles from Carrizal, and the point where the command had been ordered to meet before the fight. He traveled compassless, having given his compass to the three men who left him, along with a telegram to be sent to his wife and dispatches to Pershing.

About 4:30 o'clock in the morning, as nearly as he could judge it, he made the ranch house and found it deserted and deserted. Mar. J. T. McCabe had fled, as had the Chinese cook.

Morey sprawled face downward in a hole near the ranch house in which there was a little brackish water. He rinsed his parched mouth and drank sparingly. Then, rejuvenated, he staggered into the adobe building and found, as by a miracle, a quantity of beefsteak, coffee in a pot on the stove, and corn bread. As he ate he gained strength in body and spirit.

Finds Five Men.

His meal concluded he began an investigation of his surroundings. Near the ranch he found five troopers of the 10th, straggled from the confused fight, and gathering them together he prepared to march on. The jerked beef in the ranch house they stored in their pockets, and those who carried canteens filled them. Morey had no canteen, so he carried an old baking powder can.

"I had learned my lesson," he said, "and had determined never to be without water again."

After considering the sun a while, Morey decided it would be better to wait until the heat of the day had passed. So the men washed up, and after stuffing the last of the beef into the first aid kit, a start was made as evening approached. They headed for San Luis ranch, 25 miles to the east.

Find Mule Team.

About 10 miles, accomplished in feverish relays, they encountered the ranch manager, McCabe, with a mule team. This was a godsend, as Morey termed it.

All piled in the wagon and rode to San Luis ranch where they arrived at midnight Saturday, joining there with Maj. Howe's squadron of 11th cavalrymen, which had been sent out by Gen. Pershing to find them.

With the Howe squadron was a motor truck train, and in a truck Morey and his men headed for headquarters. Thirty-five miles from this camp, Lieut. James Collins, Gen. Pershing's aide, met the trucks with four automobiles and Morey, transferred to the smaller car, reached here at dusk.

STATE MILITIA IN READINESS FOR WAR CALL

able time to get used to things down there by the Rio Grande.

Then the infantry will go. Captain John J. Toffey, jr., commanding the mustering officers at the fort now and elevated to a lieutenant-colonelcy of the First Indiana regiment of infantry, by Governor Raiston's announcement Monday, has been receiving rapid-fire telegrams from the war department for the last three days, urging him and the Indiana guard officers to hurry—hurry—hurry.

RUMORS RAMPANT.

Rumors were rampant about the fort and the city today that the troops, some of them, were to entrain at once for Mexico. In the main these reports were untrue, although Captain Toffey has said that he will rush all troops to the points designated by General Funston as rapidly as they show any semblance of organization. The great fear among officers here is that the war department will urge action so quickly that the troops will go into border duty too raw for even their own protection.

Port of Entry, South Bend, Auburn, Angola, and many other northern Indiana cities fared well in the distribution of officerships by Governor Raiston. Colonel Aubrey L. Kuhlman, of Auburn, keeps his command of the Third regiment. Lieutenant Colonel George W. Freyer, of South Bend, keeps his position as second in command. Major Leslie B. Naffziger, formerly of Muncie, was appointed as colonel of the new regiment that has just been formed and Captain Toffey, will be his lieutenant-colonel. Lieutenant-Colonel Thomas B. Coulter, of Vincennes, was elevated to the rank of Colonel, excused from service. The Second Regiment, from the command of which Colonel Henri T. Conde, of Indianapolis, will be retired, because of physical disability. Major Emmett F. Branch, of Martinsville, will be lieutenant-colonel of the Second Regiment.

Captain Robert E. O'Brien, of the United States army, was another regular army officer the Governor elevated to a higher command, by reason of appointment with the Indiana troops. He will be a major in command of a battalion in the first regiment. He is a son of William H. O'Brien, formerly auditor of the state. Governor Raiston met him when the Governor was returning from the Panama-Pacific exposition last summer by way of the Panama canal. Captain John T. Barnett, of Indianapolis, who is to be a battalion commander also, has been two years of service already in the Mexican border trouble and can speak Spanish.

The historic name of Lew Wallace will again be heard in the ranks of the Indiana troops, if Lew Wallace, nephew of the famous Indiana author and soldier, accepts an appointment as second lieutenant of the machine gun company of the first regiment.

Others from northern Indiana who were notably mentioned in the governor's appointing orders, follow:

Captain, quartermaster, in command of supplies, Second Regiment, Walter H. Kelly, Warsaw.

Majors, battalion commanders, Third Regiment—G. C. Groll, Elkhart; George H. Rensselaer, S. G. Shaugnessis, Angola.

Majors, battalion commanders, Second Regiment—Clyde F. Driesbach, Fort Wayne.

Captain, adjutant, in command of headquarters company, Third Regiment—State Senator Glenn Van Aken, Angola.

Captain, quartermaster, in command supplies, Third Regiment—Roy Liege, Auburn.

Captain of Commissary, in command machine gun company, Third Regiment—John C. Lochner, Auburn.

First Lieutenants and battalion adjutants, Third Regiment—Lester Boggs, Warsaw; Arthur G. Tuteur, Rensselaer; Walter L. Clark, Pennville.

Chaplain, Third Regiment—Fred F. Thornburg, Decatur.

Major-Surgeon, Third Regiment—Frank L. Humphreys, Angola.

RAISE COMPANY.

International News Service.

LAPORTE, Ind., June 27.—Following the sending of company B, recruited to war strength to Fort Benjamin Harrison yesterday, steps were taken today for the organization of another company for immediate service. Tender of this company may be made to Sen. Taggart, who has offered to raise a regiment of infantry for the government.

SUPPORTS HUGHES.

International News Service.

SACRAMENTO, Calif., June 27.—Gov. Hiram Johnson, California's progressive governor, and four years ago running mate with Col. Roosevelt on the moose presidential ticket, came out unreservedly for Charles Evans Hughes today. Hughes, said Gov. Johnson in a statement, deserves the support of all progressives.

SENATE ADOPTS ARMY DRAFT BILL

$1,000,000 Relief Appropriation, However, Stricken Out of Measure.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The house resolution authorizing the president to draft national guardsmen into the federal service, was adopted by the senate Monday after a $1,000,000 appropriation to aid dependent families of those so drafted have been stricken out and a provision substituted under which guardsmen having families dependent on them could be excused from service. A preamble declaring that an emergency now exists requiring the service of troops other than the regular army also was eliminated. The language of the resolution as adopted was construed in some quarters as giving the president an unqualified power of conscription over all national guardsmen. It read:

The Resolution.

"Resolved: By the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America in congress assembled that the president be and he is hereby authorized to draft into the military service of the United States any or all members of the national guard and of the organized militia of the several states, territories and the District of Columbia any and all members of the national guard and organized militia reserves, to service not exceeding three years unless sooner discharged."

Sen. Clark said tonight his motion did not contemplate giving a conscription power to the president and he did not construe the amendment as conferring such authority.

It was said Monday night that should it be found that the amendment resolution did in fact give the president conscription power, it would be modified in conference, to which it probably will be referred Tuesday.

The appropriation for relief of dependent families of drafted guardsmen was stricken out by a vote of 45 to 39 after an all day debate. Under the provision substituted the secretary of war would be authorized to excuse from service on their own applications, all militiamen who have families depending on them for support. Twenty-one democrats and nine republicans voted to retain the million dollar appropriation. The resolution itself was adopted without a roll call.

Sen. Sherman of Illinois offered amendment just before the final vote was taken incorporating in the resolution a virtual declaration of war against the de facto government of Mexico. The proposal was tabled on motion of Chairman Chamberlain, but not until the Illinois senator had arraigned the senate for delay in preparing for eventualities in Mexico.

"I am weary of listening to mere form of words," Sen. Sherman declared. "Congress should declare here and now that a state of war exists between the United States of America and the de facto government of Mexico. It is the acute idleness to inquire of a man what his purpose is after he shoots you in the face."
